

Interview FAQs

Commonly asked job interview questions

Q: "So, tell me about yourself"

This question may be used to assess your personality, preparation, communication skills, and ability to think on your feet. Prepare a list of what you do (your current or last job), your strengths (stick to job-focused skills), and a summary of your career trajectory, linking your experience to the job at hand.

Q: "Why did you leave your last job?"

Respond positively but honestly — "...for better career advancement or promotion opportunities, increased responsibility, and greater variety of work..."

Q: "Why do you want to do this job / work for this company?"

Demonstrate your knowledge of the company and reemphasise your suitability for the position.

Q: "What do you think you have to offer this company?"

This is a chance to sing your own praises — concentrate on the skills you have that are required for the position. For example:

- "I have strong sales skills, am a good team player, and am very keen to be involved in the new markets you are developing in the Asian region."

Q: "What do you think this position involves?"

This question is designed to reveal if you have thought about the position, done some research, listened to the interviewer, and can summarise all of this information.

Q: "What do you know about the company?"

Demonstrate your interest in the job and your understanding of the organisation and industry. Talk about the research you did into the company's key areas of interest, its size, its main customers or current status, referring to your source of information.

Q: "Do you have any questions you would like to ask?"

Always prepare a question to ask the interviewer. Ask about the position, request clarification of general information about the company, or summarise your understanding and request confirmation. If they have already answered your questions, tell them (be specific) so they know you have thought about the position in preparing for the interview. For example:

- "What do you see as being the main focus of this role?"
- "Am I correct in saying that the position involves mediating between A and B departments and monitoring and developing new approaches to...?"

- "I'd like to ask about the organisational structure... are the publications produced on a national basis or individually by each regional office. How are budgets controlled and allocated?"

Q: "What do you believe are your key strengths?"

Prepare responses that give specific examples of your strengths at previous positions that will support your job application.

Q: "What do you believe are your weaknesses?"

No one readily admits real weaknesses in an interview situation. It is general knowledge that this is an opportunity to turn the question into a positive one. Think of something that relates to your experience of work that is plausible as a weakness but is not a negative point. For example:

- "I am very particular about detail"
- "I become very focussed on the projects I am involved in"

Q: "Why have you had so many jobs?"

If you have had jobs in different industries or several positions in a short period, describe the positives — that you were learning new skills, following different career paths or travelling overseas, etc. Refer to the experience you gained in past jobs that relate to the position under discussion.

Q: "What do you enjoy most about your current/last job?"

The trick with this question is to list what you have enjoyed about work that strongly relates to the key competencies of the position in question and to mention that you are looking forward to expanding your experience/scope in these areas.

Q: A question requesting confidential information about a previous position

This may be a test of your discretion and professionalism. It is best to reply that you would prefer not to divulge any confidential information (sales figures, for instance), citing the fact that you are sure your interviewer would expect the same discretion from their employees.

Q: "Where do you see yourself in five years?"

This is an assessment of the extent of your ambition and career planning. You should demonstrate that your long-term goals are appropriate for the position being discussed and your commitment to them.

Q: "Can you give me an example of your creativity / managerial/organisational skills?"

Think of some examples that prove that you possess the key attributes and competencies requested in the job ad and description. These are probably the areas on which your interviewer will probably focus.

Q: "Do you work well under pressure?"

Answer with a 'yes', and give a specific example of a time when you were under pressure and how you rose to the challenge.

Q: "Have you ever had to deal with conflicting deadlines? How did you decide which task to complete?"

These are behavioural questions designed to elicit information about the required competencies for the position. Cite experiences in your past jobs, and always try to inject a positive note into your answer (e.g. that you learned from the experience).
